

THE THREE GOATS

 The three goats

There is a family of three goats: mummy Goat, daddy Goat and baby Goat. The goats are hungry and in their garden there isn't any grass to eat. They see a beautiful field with very green grass across a river. To go there, they have to walk over a bridge. On the bridge there is a nasty old Troll. Baby goes first.

The Troll asks: "Who are you?"
"I'm baby Goat. Please Mr. Troll, can I cross the bridge?"

"No, you can't! It's my bridge! I'm hungry and I like goats!"

"Oh, wait! I'm small. My mum is coming. She is big!" "All right! You can cross my bridge!". And the Baby crosses the bridge.

Then comes Mother Goat: "Who are you?" asks the Troll. "I'm mummy Goat. Please Mr. Troll, can I cross your bridge?" "No," says the Troll "I'm hungry!

I want to eat you!" "Oh wait, I'm small. Here comes Daddy. He is very big!" and Mummy goes across the bridge. Daddy comes along and crosses the bridge.

"Who are you?" says the Troll. "I'm daddy Goat. Please Mr. Troll, can I cross your bridge?" "No," says the Troll "I'm hungry! Come here, I want to eat you!" "O.K! Here I am!" and he pushes the troll off the bridge in the river!

The three goats are very happy and they eat the green grass in the field over the bridge.
